1.0-Background:

Government of India (GoI) is implementing World Bank (WB) assisted Atal Bhujal Yojana (ATAL JAL) for addressing groundwater challenges. The scheme aims to improve ground water management through community participation and this would be done by improving the planning, protection, regulation, and management of groundwater resources through community participation. The scheme mainly focuses on building the requisite institutional foundation, knowledge and information base, and on-the-ground investments for more efficient and sustainable use of groundwater resources. The scheme will support Government of India's on-going groundwater program by strengthening a performance-based system of incentives that fosters positive behavioral change for sustainable groundwater management. Incentives will be provided by rewarding achievements at the State and local levels in improving groundwater management practices, including the establishment of processes for participatory groundwater planning and the implementation of investments and actions generated through the strengthened planning process.

Department of Water Resources, River Development and Ganga Rejuvenation (DoWR, RD&GR) is funding and spearheading implementation of Atal Bhujal Yojana in seven states of the country. In each participating state, the focus is on over-exploited, critical and semi-critical watersheds/Blocks, as defined by the Central Ground Water Board (CGWB). Maharashtra is one of the states selected for implementation of scheme along with six other states (i.e. Gujarat, Haryana, Karnataka, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh) under this scheme.
